

THE NEW CONCEPT OF

DIGITAL VULNERABILITY

AND THE NEW RULES ON

UNFAIR COMMERCIAL PRACTICES

BIO

Dr Eleni Kaprou is a lecturer in Business Law in Queen Mary University of London since 2022. Prior to that she held posts in Brunel University and Cardiff. She received her PhD in 2018 from the University of Nottingham. She has presented her work in numerous international conferences including the UK, Denmark, the Netherlands, Brazil, South America and elsewhere. Eleni has also served as a consultant on EU projects and taught on executive programmes for civil servants. She teaches commercial and consumer law as well as law of the digital markets and is the academic lead for the LLM in Commercial and Corporate Law. Eleni's research interests lay in European private law with a focus on vulnerable subjects. She has written on consumer vulnerability, aggressive practices and retail financial services among others. Currently she is working on aggressive practices in the digital environment.

Dr Eleni Kaprou

Tuesday 20 February

Time: 12:00–13:00

Venue: Palmer Building,
Room 106 (Whiteknights Campus)

To book your free place visit the online store
CCLFR research seminar with Dr Eleni Kaprou