

12th GEAR Quarterly Lecture
27 November 2024, 2:00-3:30 p.m. GMT (London time)
University of Reading, Whiteknights, Chancellors 8 (hybrid)

Professor Gulcin Ozkan
(King's College London)

“Footprints of Global Shocks in Emerging Economies: Sources of Exposure and International Spillovers”

The talk will draw on various papers and in particular a recent ECB working paper (joint work with Jakub Mistak). As usual, the lecture will be synchronously recorded and available for viewing ex post from the University of Reading's Research YouTube channel. Here is the MS Teams link to join – but do try to come in person!

Gulcin Ozkan is a Professor of Finance at King's College London. Before joining King's, she held academic positions at METU, Durham University, and the University of York where she had a Chair during 2011-2019. She was the managing editor of the Bulletin of Economic Research from 2013 to 2023. She is a current trustee and a former academic secretary of the Money, Macro, and Finance (MMF) Society. Gulcin's main research focuses on the intersection between macroeconomics and finance covering issues such as financial crises; financial stability; monetary and macroprudential policies; emerging markets; fiscal policy and the economics of constitutions. Her book, 'Why are presidential regimes bad for the economy? Understanding the link between forms of government and economic outcomes', was published by Routledge in 2023. Gulcin supervised a large number of PhD students currently placed at international institutions such as the IMF, ECB, and OECD, and various national central banks and academic institutions in the UK and abroad.

The lecture is free to attend, online or in person, but if you come in person please send an e-mail to register your interest to Rachel Tregidgo at r.a.tregidgo@reading.ac.uk