

Delivering participatory food systems research in our own communities: reflections about co-production by community food researchers and community partners

Presenters:
Hannah Gardiner
and Lisa Howard

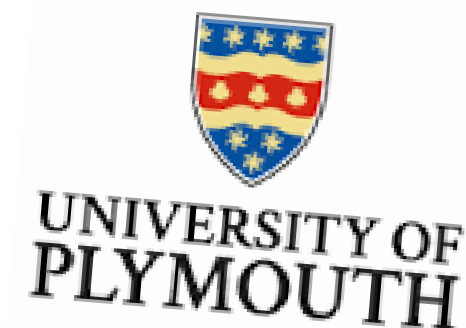

Co-authors:

Hannah Gardiner
Maria Roughton
Lisa Howard
Louise Hunt
Unis Nisa
Clare Pettinger

QR code to pre-print:

Introduction

FoodSEqual

Introduction

Community Food
Researchers
(CFRs)

Trained
Paid. Supported

Co-delivering research

Community Partners

Introduction

Supervisors:

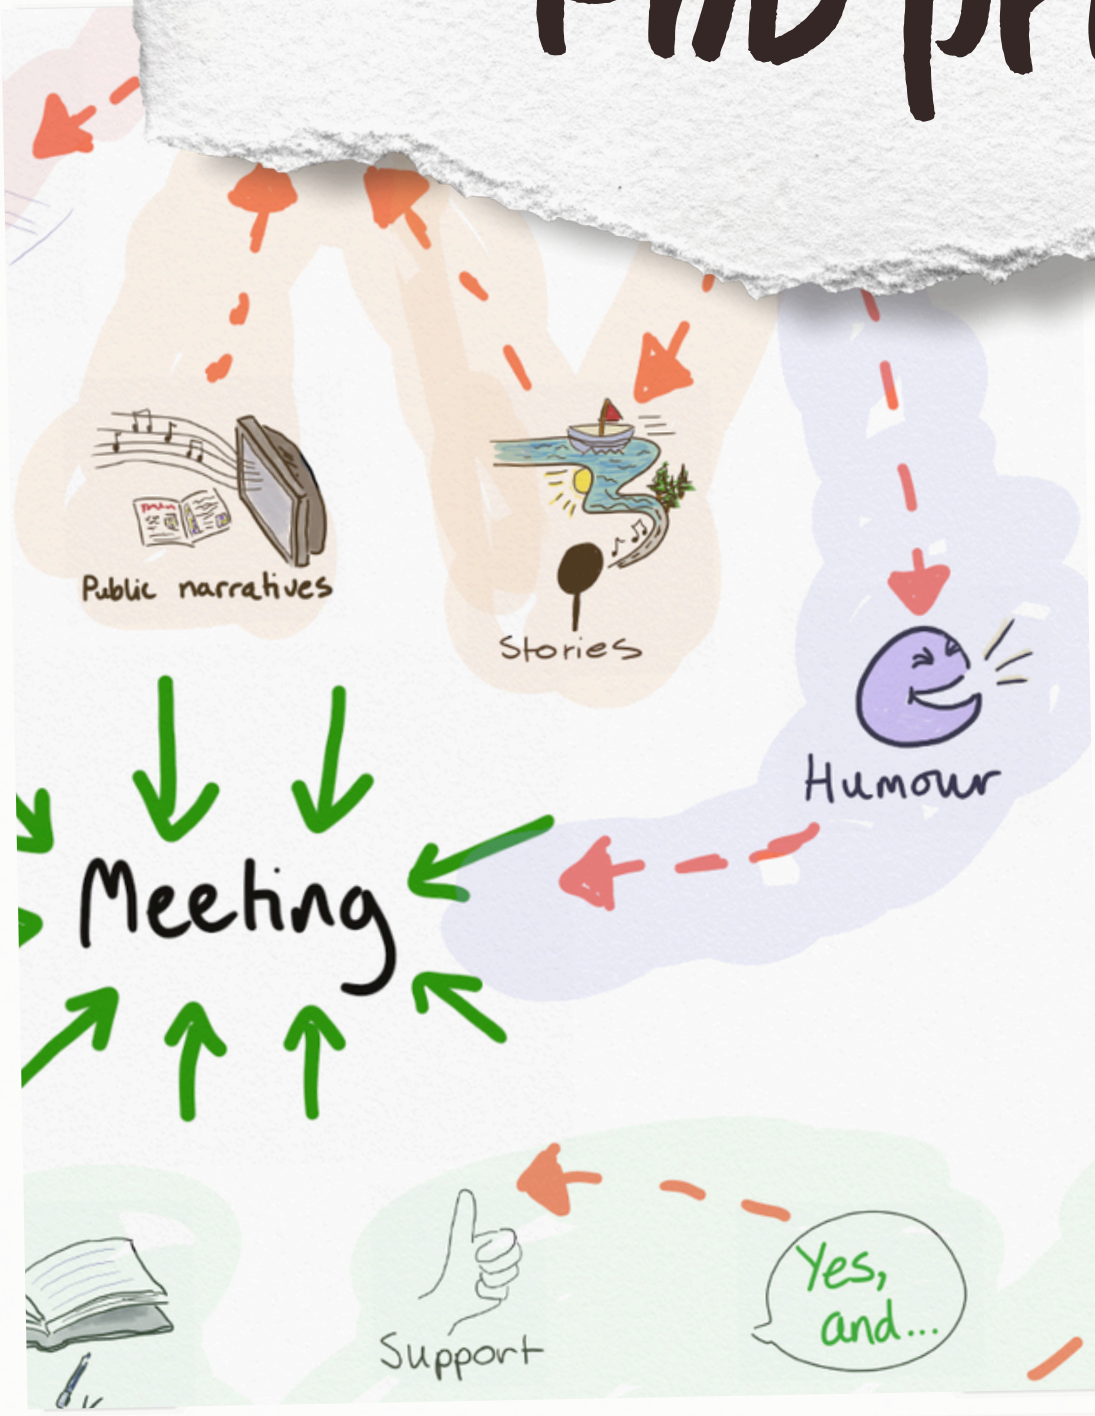

Dr Clare
Pettinger

Dr Louise Hunt

Prof Mary
Hickson

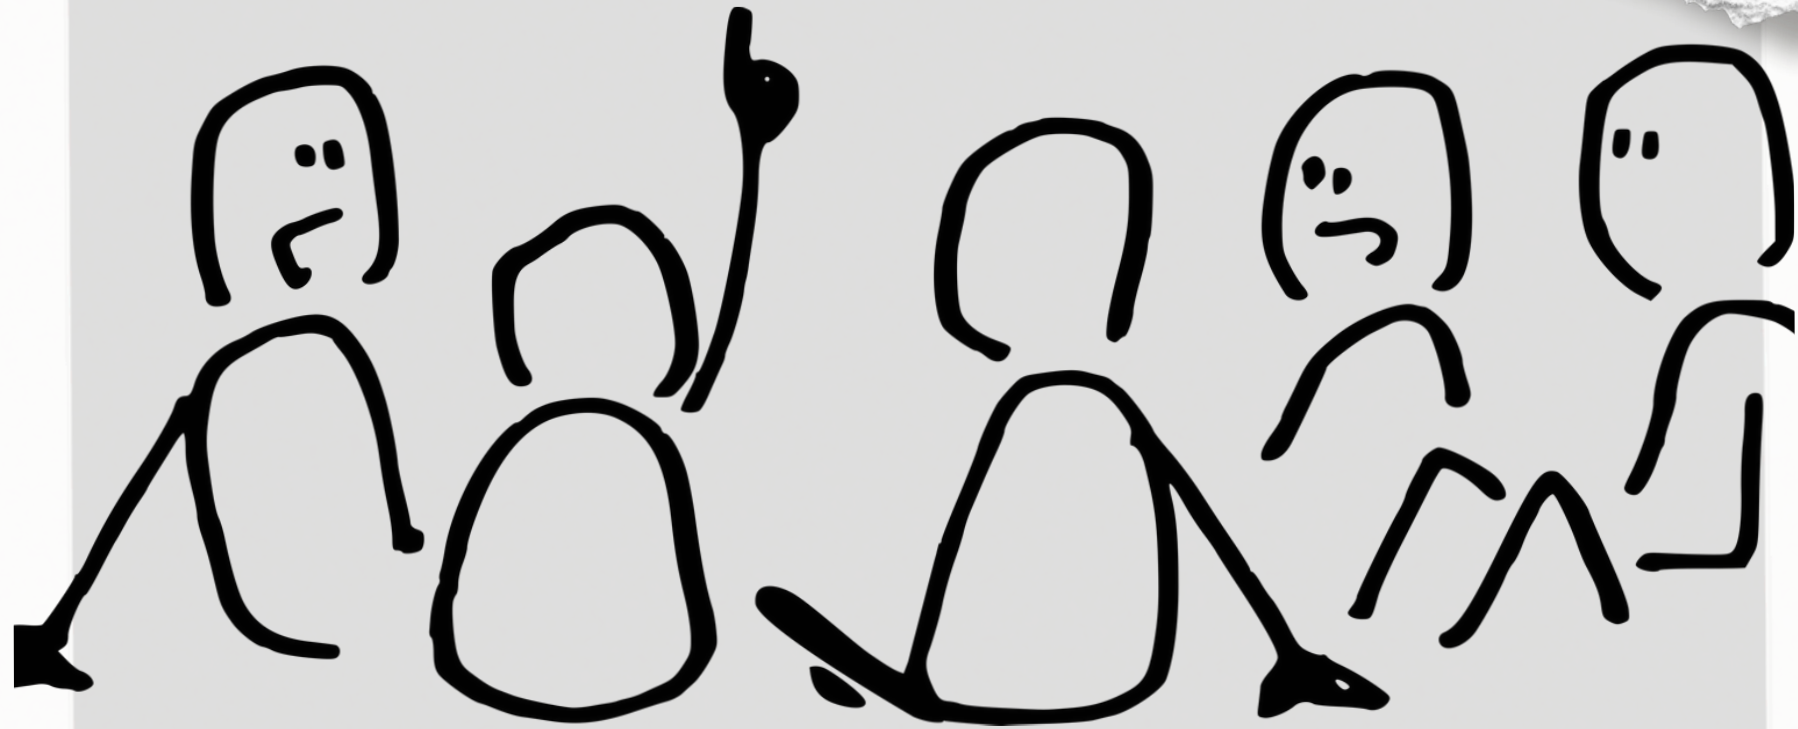

PhD project

Methods

Workshop planning: Why did we do it?

Chance for CFRs to reflect & share

Give
community partners
a voice

Influence practice

Methods

Key things to make this happen

time and resources

working together

Methods

Workshop format

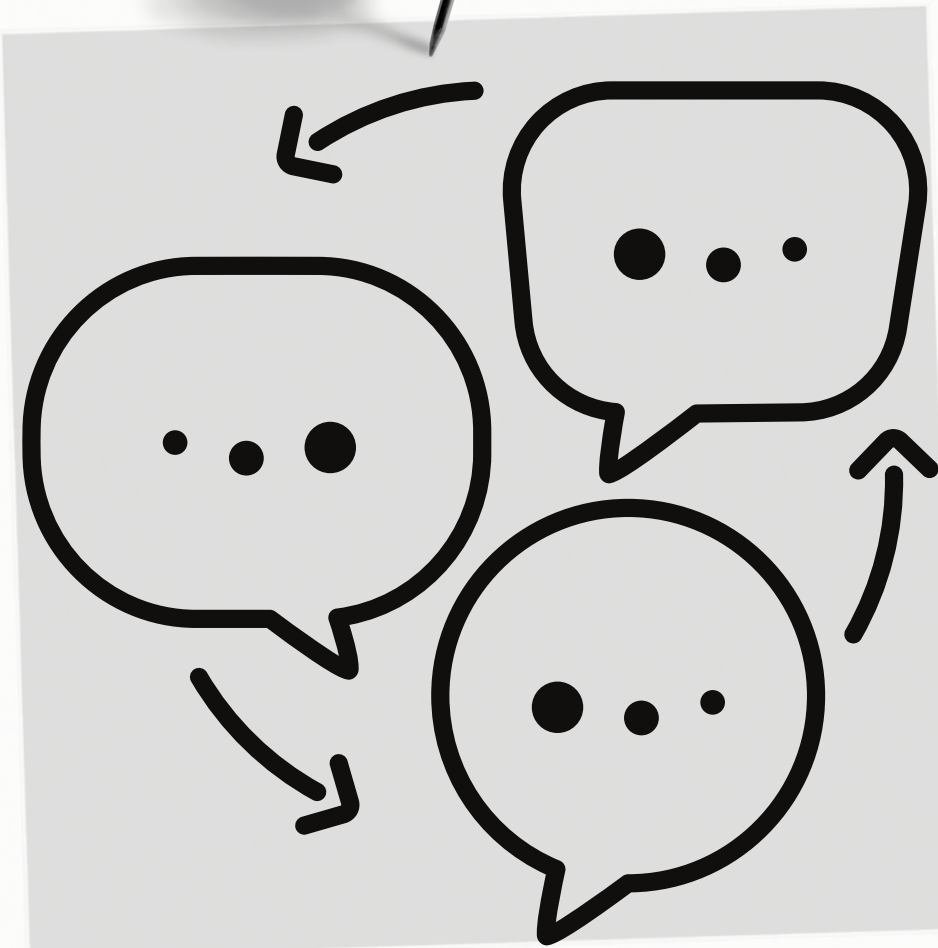

Methods

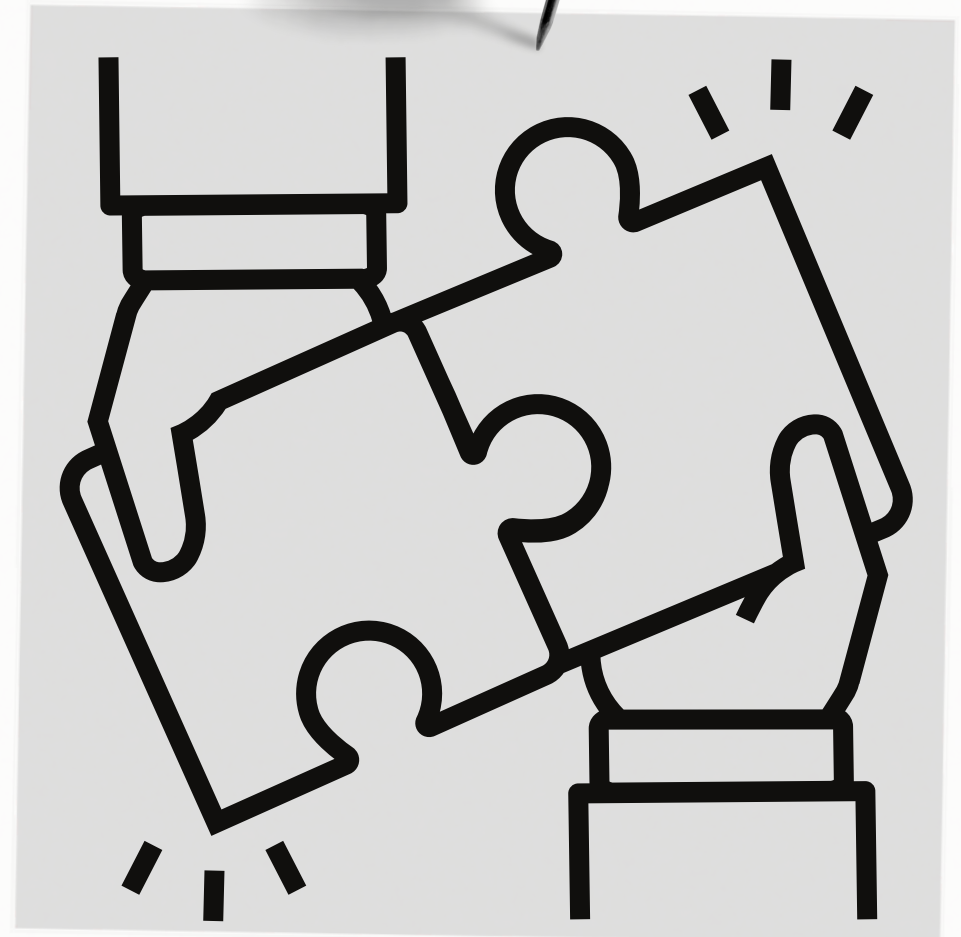

Analysis & Write up

Thematic Analysis

Discussion &
Feedback

Co-writing

Methods

Analysis & Write up

Distance working

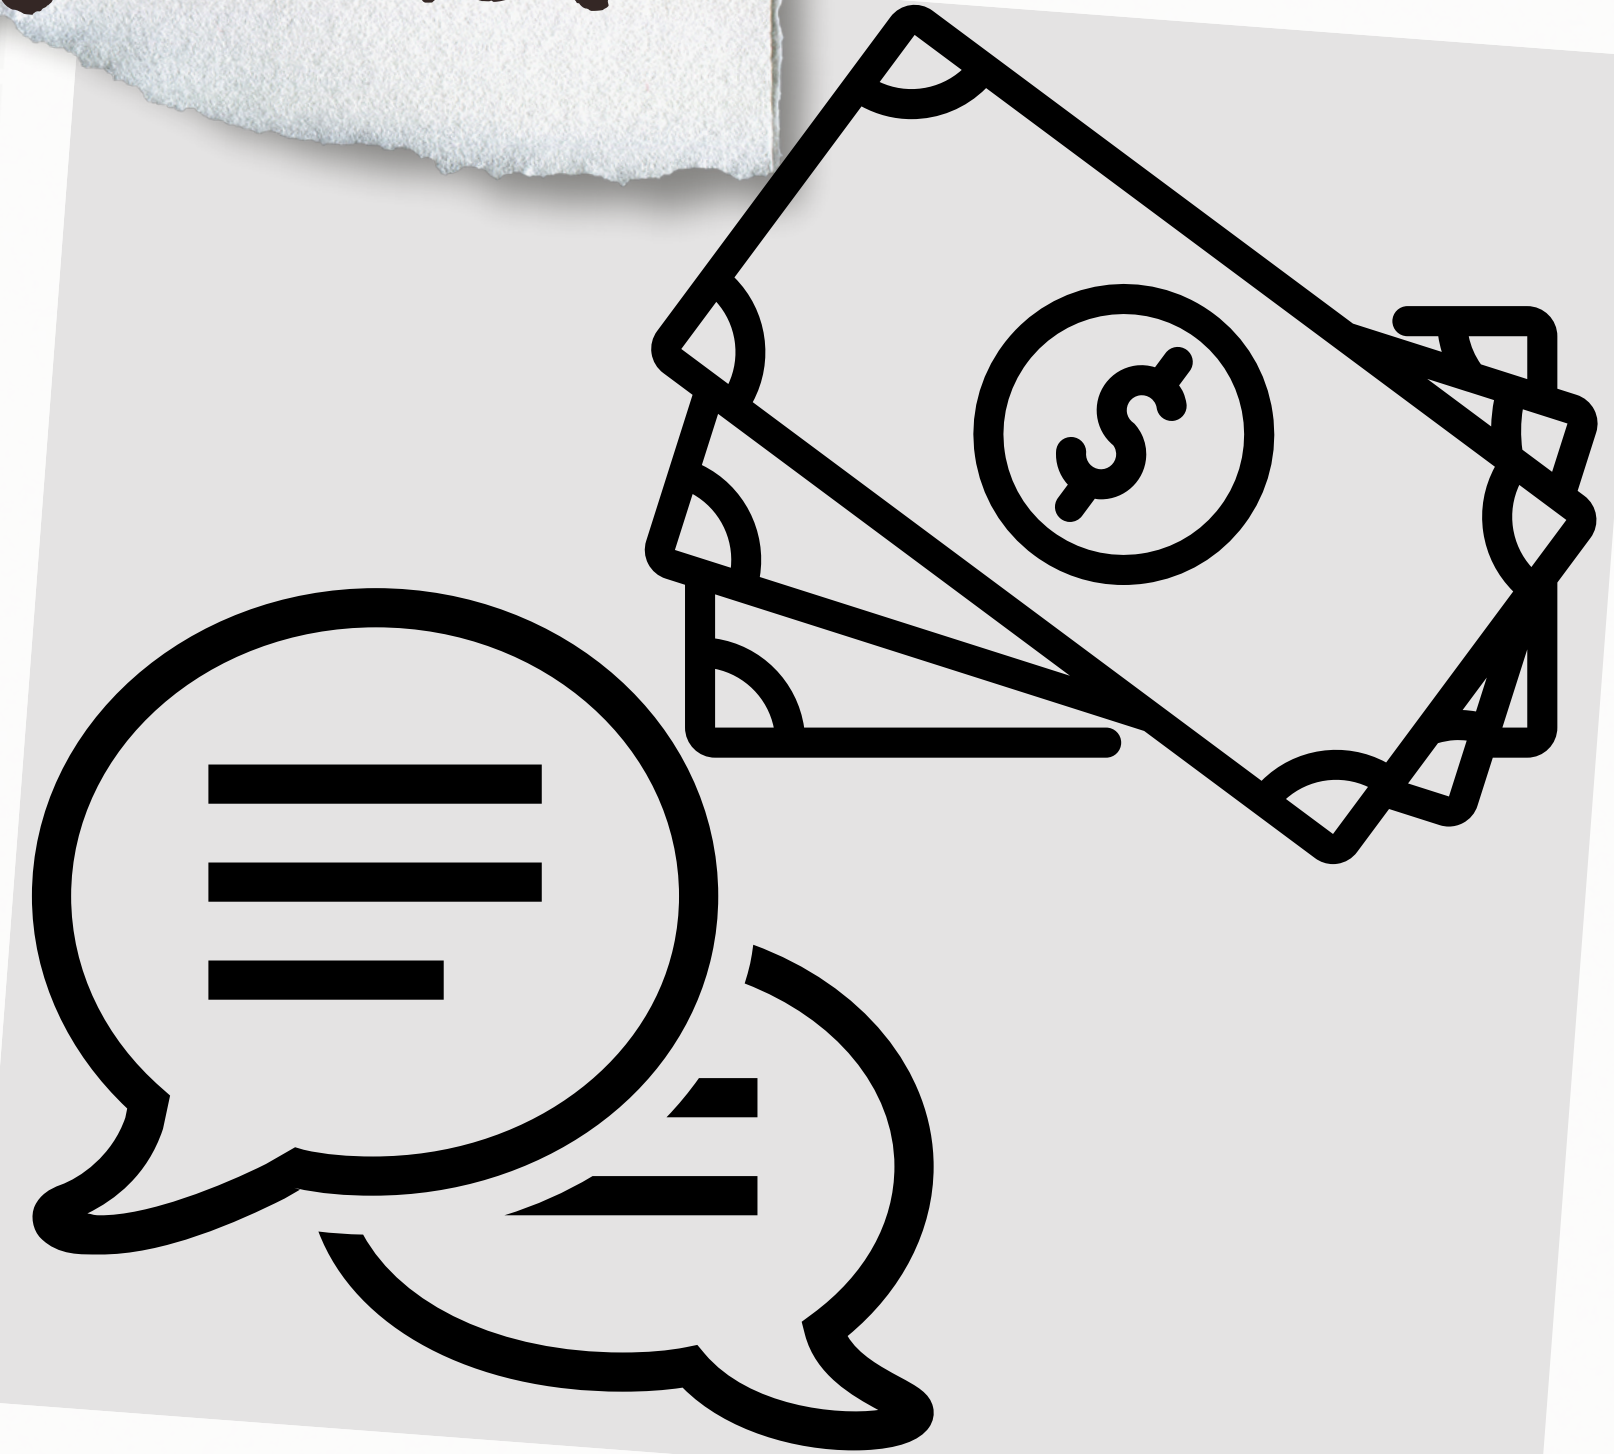

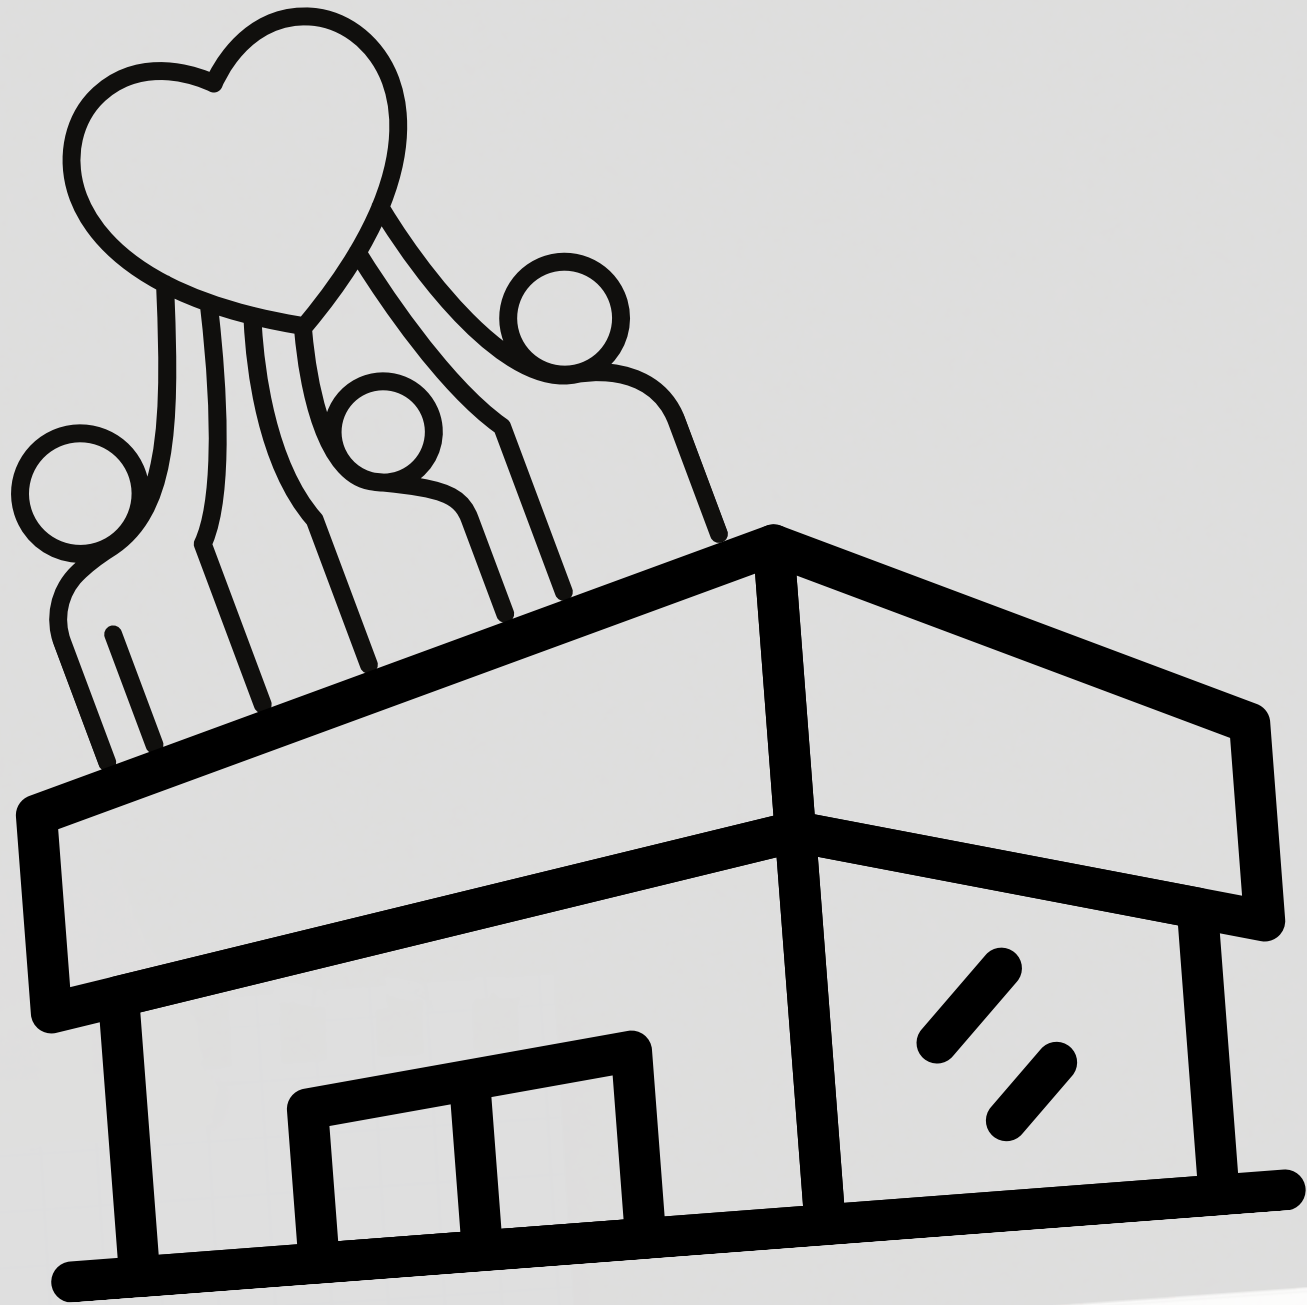

Busyness!

People leaving the project

Results

Engagement & Building Trust

Results

Co-design & the right support

Results

Structure Vs Space

Results

Additional work

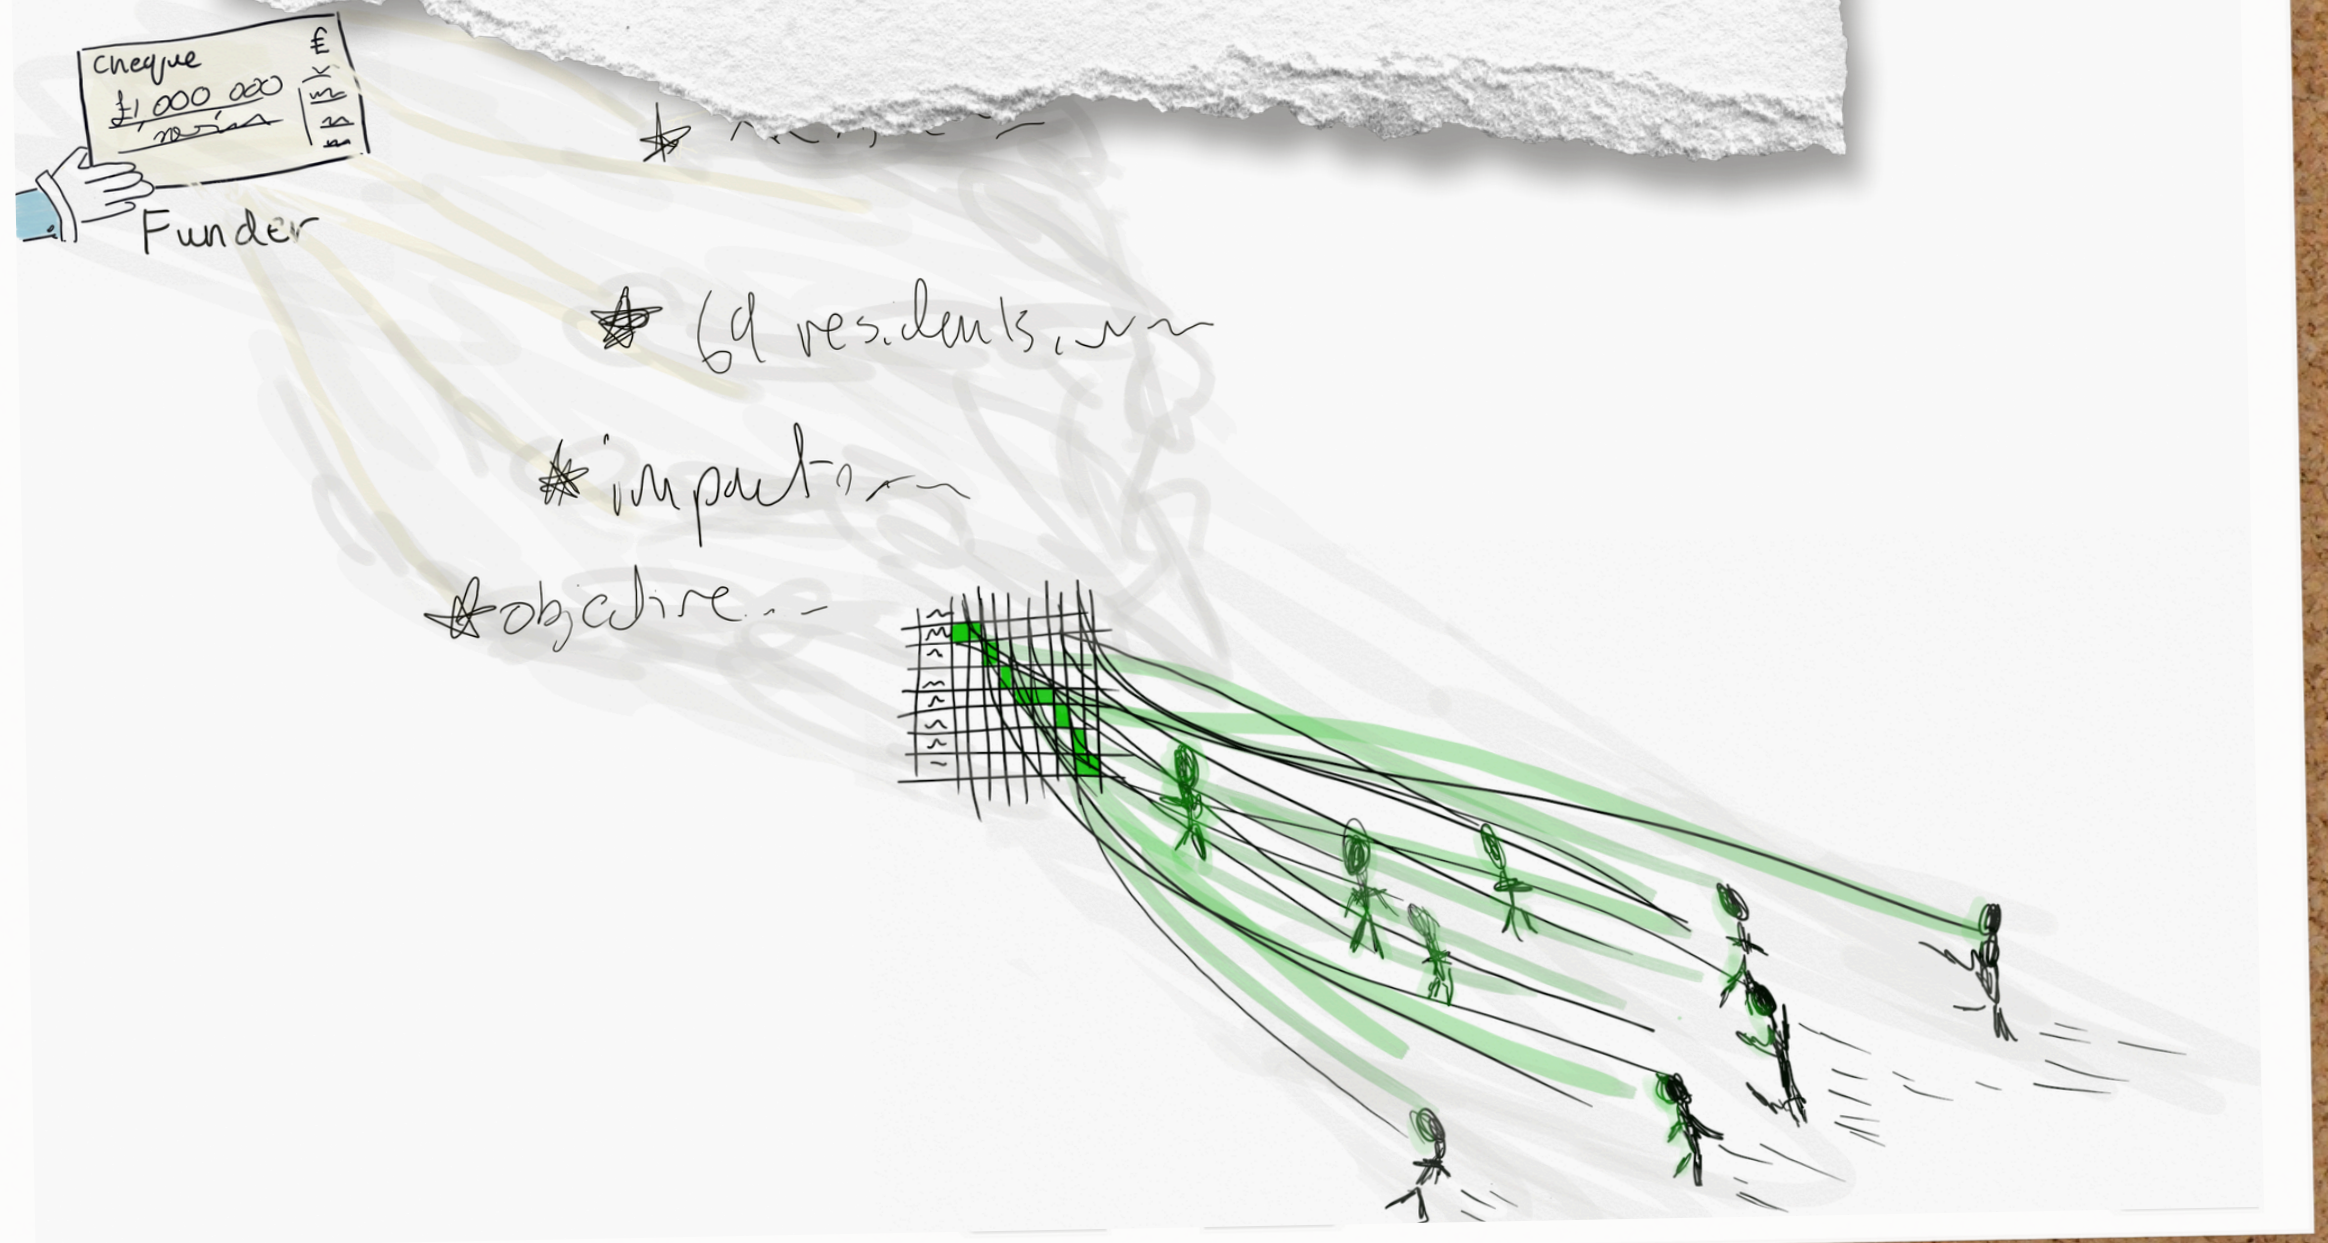

Conclusions

Time to do
co-production
work/labour/tasks

vs

pressure to deliver
the project

tensions

Conclusions

tensions

Structures around working in academia

vs

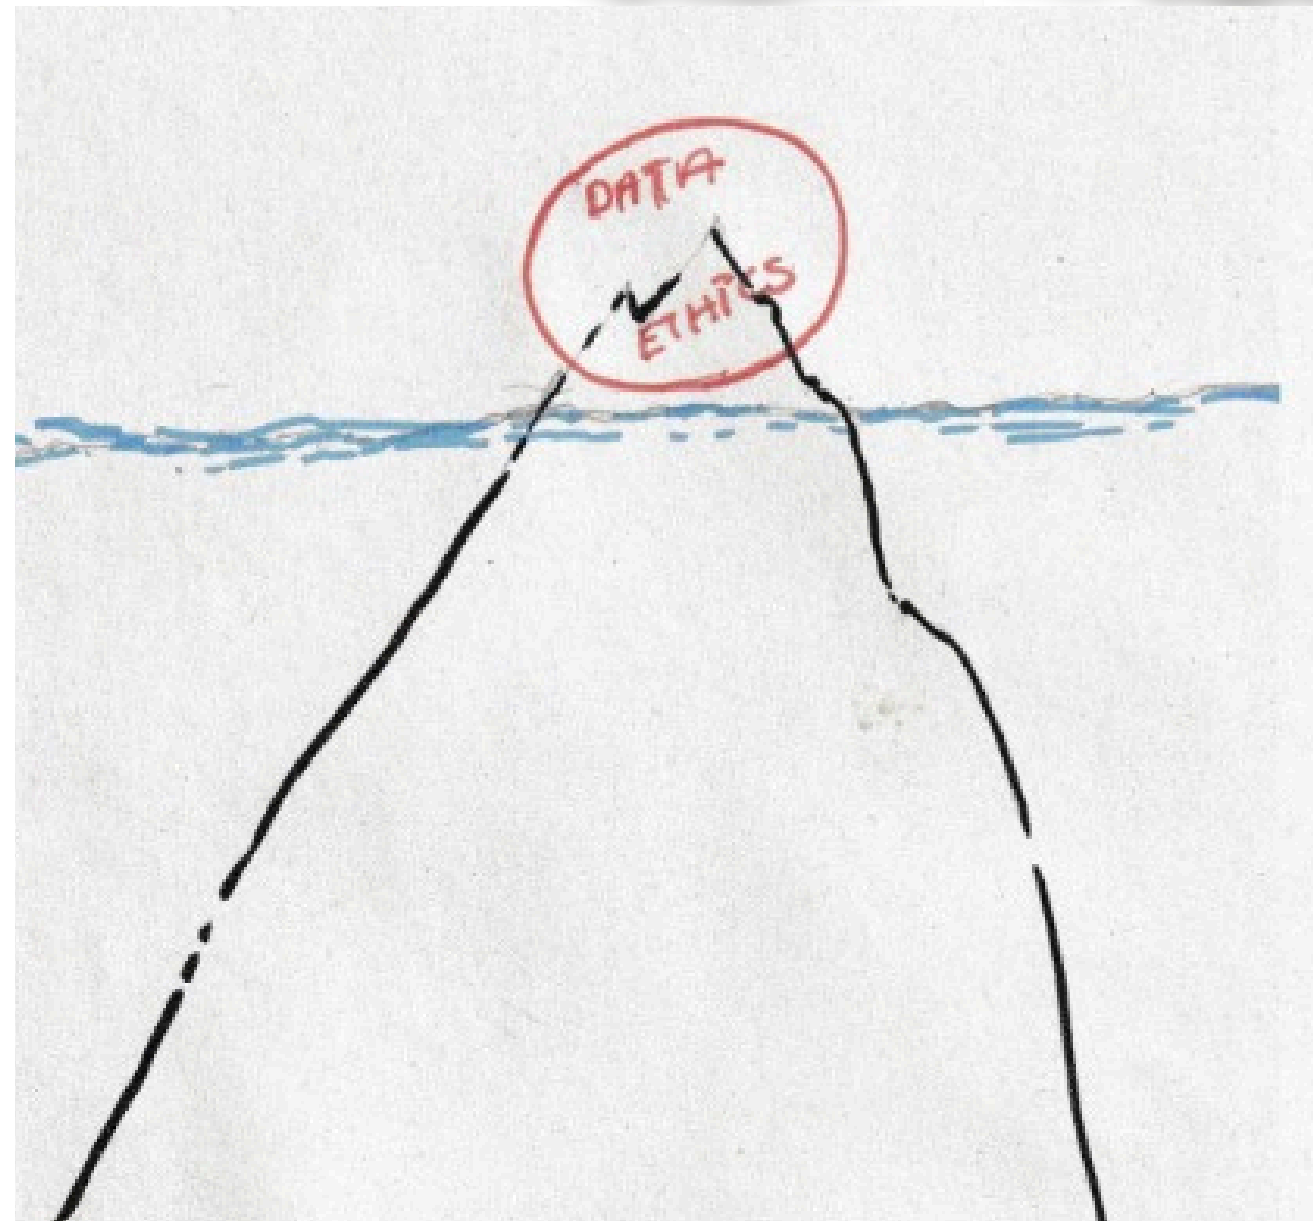

Structures around
working in the community

Conclusions

Better understanding and acknowledgement of work undertaken by community collaborators

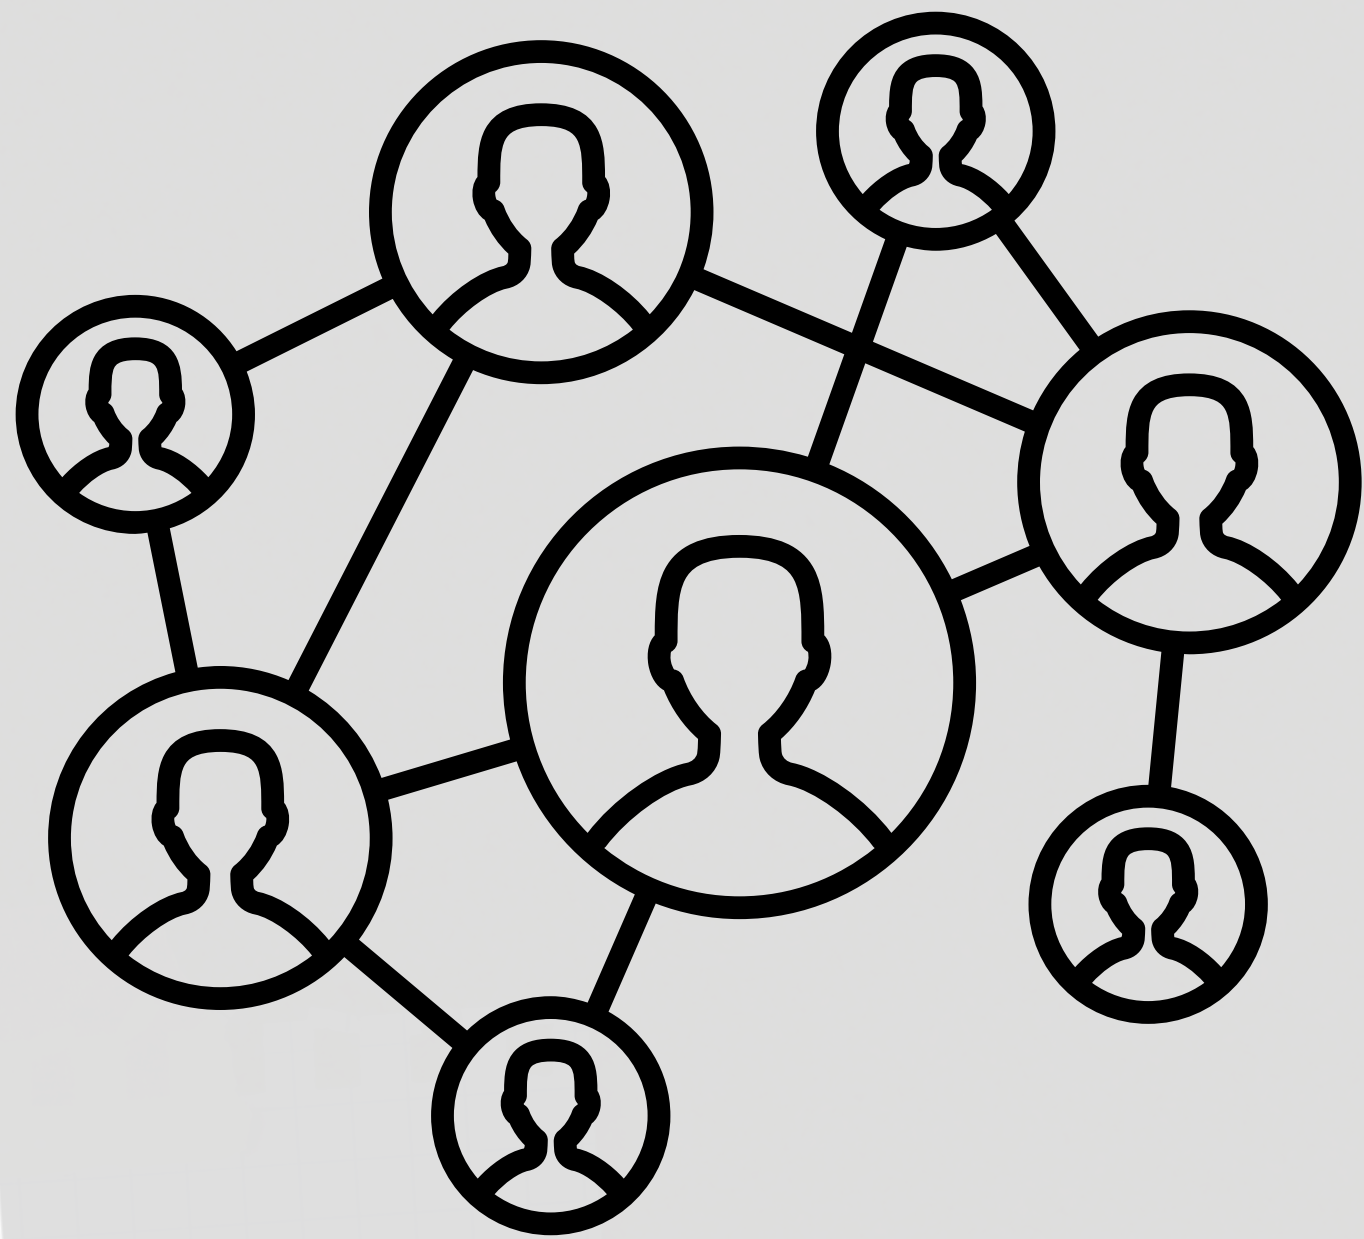

Recommendation

hidden labour

Contributions to food system transformation

QR code to pre-print:
See more insights & recommendations