

Shaping sustainable food systems for future generations

Chaired by Prof. Ian Givens, IFNH Director and Prof. Vimal Karani, IFNH Deputy Director, University of Reading

14:00	Welcome	Prof. Carol Wagstaff, Research Dean for Agriculture, Food and Health, University of Reading
14:05	IFNH – Activities and achievements	Prof. Ian Givens, IFNH Director, University of Reading
14:15	What changes to the UK food supply will be needed to ensure a sustainable yet nutritionally adequate diet?	Prof. Nigel Scollan, GRI Director, Institute for Global Food Security, Queen's University Belfast
14:45	InformPack: Development of public engagement actions, tools and strategies to enable a sustainable shift in food packaging culture in Europe	Dr Stella Lignou, Associate Professor, Sensory and Consumer Science, University of Reading
15:00	Evaluating the role of traditional crops for providing healthy sustainable diets for the Semi-Arid Tropics: A collaboration with ICRISAT	Dr Jane Parker, Associate Professor in Flavour Chemistry, University of Reading
15:15	Challenges and opportunities for working towards a more trusted food system	Dr Anna Macready, Associate Professor, Applied Economics & Marketing, University of Reading
15:30	Short Break
15:40	The EIT Food Strategic Missions Programme: Shaping priorities for actions Mission 1 Healthier Lives through Food	Dr Beatrix Wepner, Scientist, Innovation Systems and Policy, Austrian Institute of Technology GmbH, Vienna
16:10	Mission 2 Net-Zero Food System	Stephane Durant, Head of Innovation, Institute for Global Food Security, Queen's University Belfast
16:40	Q&A	Chaired by Prof. Ian Givens, IFNH Director and Prof. Vimal Karani, IFNH Deputy Director, University of Reading
17:00	Formal close
